

Renters Insurance Checklist

If you rent a house or apartment, your landlord's insurance will only cover the costs of repairing the building if there is a fire or other disaster. You need your own coverage, known as renters or tenants insurance in order to financially protect yourself and your belongings.

Renters insurance includes three types of protection:

- Coverage for Personal Possessions
- Liability Protection
- Additional Living Expenses

The following checklist can help you choose the right coverage.

1. Coverage for Personal Possessions

1. How much insurance should I buy?
Make sure you have enough insurance to replace all of your personal possessions in the event of a burglary, fire or other covered disaster. The Insurance Information Institute offers free Web-based home inventory software, available at www.knowyourstuff.org.
2. Should I get replacement cost or actual cash value coverage?
An actual cash value policy pays to replace your possessions minus a deduction for depreciation whereas a replacement cost policy will pay the cost of replacing your possessions without accounting for depreciation. The price of replacement cost coverage is about 10 percent more but can be well worth the extra expense.
3. What disasters are—and are not—covered?
Renters insurance covers you against losses from fire or smoke, lightning, vandalism, theft, explosion, windstorm and certain types of water damage. Most renters insurance policies, however, do not cover floods. Earthquakes are not covered either.
4. What is my deductible, and how does it work?
A deductible is an amount of money you pay out-of-pocket before the insurance coverage kicks in. The larger the deductible, the lower the premium charged for the same amount of coverage, so if you can afford a deductible of at least $1,000, you may get as much as 25 percent off your premium. Remember though, that you will be responsible for paying the deductible each time you file a claim.
5. What is a "floater" and do I need one?
If you have expensive jewelry, furs, sports or musical equipment, or collectibles, consider adding a floater to your policy. Most standard renters policies offer only a limited dollar amount for such items; a floater is a separate policy that provides additional insurance for your valuables and covers them if they are accidentally lost.

2. Liability Protection

1. Do I have enough liability insurance in the event someone sues me?
Renters insurance provides liability protection that covers you against lawsuits for bodily injury or property damage done by you, your family members and even your pets. This coverage pays for both the cost of defending you in court and court awards—up to the limit of your policy. Consider whether the amount of liability coverage provided by your policy is sufficient to protect your assets.
You also have no-fault medical coverage as part of the liability protection provided by your renters policy. This coverage is only for injuries sustained by others and is not a substitute for your own health insurance.

2. Do I need an umbrella liability policy?

If you need a large amount of liability protection, you can purchase a personal umbrella liability policy. An umbrella policy kicks in when you reach the limit on the underlying liability coverage provided by your renters or auto policy. It will also cover you for things such as libel and slander. Because the personal umbrella policy goes into effect after the underlying coverage is exhausted, there are certain limits that usually must be met in order to purchase this coverage.

3. Additional Living Expenses

1. If I can't live in my home after a disaster, will I be covered?

If your home is destroyed by a disaster that your policy covers and you need to live elsewhere, renters insurance provides additional living expenses (ALE). ALE pays for hotel bills, temporary rentals, restaurant meals and other expenses you incur while your home is being repaired or rebuilt. Some companies provide coverage for a set amount of time, while others have a financial cap.

4. Other Coverages

1. I run a business out of my home; do I need supplemental coverage?

A typical homeowners or renters policy provides only $2,500 coverage for business equipment which is generally not enough to replace all of the equipment required by even a small home business. You may also need coverage for liability and lost income. Insurance companies differ considerably in the types of business coverages they offer.

2. Am I covered if I am traveling or away from home?

Most renters policies include what is called off-premises coverage. This means that belongings that are outside of your home are covered against the same disasters listed in your policy. However some companies may limit the amount of off-premises theft to 10 percent of the amount of personal possessions insurance.

5. Discounts

Insurance companies often offer discounts on renters insurance if you have another policy with them for your car or business. You can also get discounts if you:

- Have a security system
- Use smoke detectors
- Use deadbolt locks
- Have good credit
- Have multiple policies
- Stay with the same insurer
- Are over 55 years old
- All residents are non smokers

Companies offer several types of discounts, but these can vary widely by company.
